KATRINA-PROOF

Sheriff pushing for new radios

By SCOTT HAWKINS
scott@neshobademocrat.com

Sheriff's deputies were in pursuit of a motorist after an attempted traffic stop a few weeks back in rural Neshoba County and risked the danger of losing radio communication if they crossed the county line.

The chase led down narrow roads and highways and Sheriff Eric Clark said he had to order his deputies not to cross the county line because they would likely lose radio contact.

Clark is pushing for the move to a $100,000 state radio communications system developed after the Hurricane Katrina communications blackout that would not rely on the county repeater near Deemer.

The Philadelphia police and fire departments are considering the move and 68 other counties already have made the switch.

"Like (former Gov.) Phil

Bryant said, 'Don't ask men and women to put their lives on the line if you don't give them the tools to win,'" Clark said.

Fortunately, the chase ended before the suspect crossed the county line and no one was injured.

Clark said he did not want his deputies to be in a potential confrontation with a suspect if they were out of radio communication.

"These guys are my family members," Clark said. "In Neshoba County, we have dead spots where we cannot talk with our radios."

Clark's Katrina experience

Clark, a former Mississippi Wildlife Fisheries and Parks officer, said he remembers being on the ground the day after Hurricane Katrina made landfall and devastated the Mississippi Gulf Coast.

"I remember 2005, Aug. 30,"

Clark said. "I was in Katrina. We had thousands of boots on the ground and a lot of confusion."

Clark said radio communications were down and state and local agencies who had responded to the emergency could not communicate.

"I remember all the chaos," said Clark, who was working with the MWFP at the time.

Other agencies on the scene included local police, fire and sheriff's offices and other organizations such as the Mississippi Highway Patrol and the National Guard.

Clark said the National Guard eventually set up portable radio towers that helped in communication between agencies.

Out of the chaos, then-Gov. Haley Barbour formed a commission to come up with solutions to improve statewide com-

Young avoids runoff in primary

By STEVE SWOGETINSKY
steve@neshobademocrat.com

Incumbent Philadelphia Mayor James A. Young has won the Democrat Party nomination with 53.3% of the vote to seek a fourth term and will face Republican Leo E. Renaldo in the June 8 General Election.

Young, who received 451 votes or 53.31% of the total 846 Democrat mayoral votes cast, secured the nomination in the city's April 6 party primary election with a large enough margin to avoid a runoff against challengers Cassie Henson Hickman, who garnered 322 votes or 38.06%, and businessman Randy Gill, who got 73 votes or 8.63%.

Republican mayoral candidate Renaldo received 265 votes, or 79.10%, of the 335 total Republican mayoral votes cast to earn the nomination by defeating Robin S. Allen Sr., who got 59 votes, or 17.61%.

In total, 1,207 votes were cast in the April 6 Democrat and Republican primaries. Of that total, 1,161 were cast on Election Day, 46 were absentee and approximately 10 were affidavits.

Young thankful

Young said he is thankful he won't have to mount a runoff campaign in the Democrat Primary.

"We made it through the first round," Young said. "I am thankful for my wife and niece and those who helped me. And I want to thank the voters who allowed me to win the primary and hopefully lead them for the next four years."

DEEMED NATIONAL TREASURE

Connie Smith's vocals recognized

By JOHN LEE
john@neshobademocrat.com

Connie Smith's debut single "Once a Day" reached No. 1 on the Billboard country singles chart in November 1964 and remained at the top for a record eight weeks, a first then for a female.

That hit song was one of 25 additions to the National Recording Registry at the Library of Congress last month, a prestigious listing that deems treasures worthy of preservation for all time.

Smith's collaboration with country music legend and Neshoba County native Marty Stuart in the 1990s turned romantic, they married and the last few years the Congress of Country Music downtown in the former Ellis has become a project. Smith has been called one of the most underrated vocalists in country music history.

"I never dreamed when I walked into RCA's Studio B in Nashville on July 16, 1964, to make my first record that a song from that session called 'Once a Day' would become a hit," Smith said.

"In the wake of its success, that recording received many honors and the song has endured. But, for 'Once a Day' to be recognized by the Library of Congress and to have it listed in the nation's National Recording Registry is indeed the ultimate honor. This blesses me, and I am extremely grateful."

Dolly Parton once said, "There's really only three female singers in the world:

Streisand, Ronstadt and Connie Smith. The rest of us are only pretending."

"Once a Day," written by Bill Anderson, describes a woman who has not gotten over her previous lover. Although the woman explains that she has limited her grieving to "once a day," it is later found out that she is grieving, "once a day, every day, all day long."

Other additions in the National Recording Registry this year included "The Rainbow Connection" by Kermit the Frog, "Celebration" by Kool & the Gang and "When the Saints Go Marching In" by Louis Armstrong & his Orchestra.

Tribe dedicates new Tucker Cemetery

A ribbon cutting/dedication ceremony was held at the new Tucker Community Cemetery on Thursday, April 1. Tribal Chief Cyrus Ben, 2019-2021 Choctaw Indian Princess Elisah Jimmie, Tucker Tribal Council Representatives Dorothy Wil-native Leontyne Price in her signature role and with her voice in her prime was added.

"Once a Day" became Smith's biggest hit and was nominated at the Grammy Awards for Best Female Country Vocal Performance.

In March of 1965, Smith's first self-titled album was released on RCA Victor Records and spent 30 weeks in the Top Country Albums Chart overall with seven weeks at No. 1.

It produced three country charting hits including "Tiny Blue Transistor Radio" and "Then and Only Then" which peaked at No. 4.

Smith's success continued through 1960s and mid-1970s with 19 more Top-10 hits.

She took time off to raise five children and became more involved in her church.

Smith and Stuart would first meet at her 1970 Choctaw Indian Fair performance where an 11-year-old Marty Stuart fan told his mother Hilda, "I'm going to marry her someday!"

Smith said having her recording of "Once a Day" included in the registry is an honor.

"My work is now among icons like Kermit the Frog's 'The Rainbow Connection' and Louis Armstrong's 'When the Saints Go Marching In,'" Smith told the Democrat.

"I am so thankful to have this as a legacy for my kids. I never planned for my career to be in singing, but I really believe it was what God wanted me to do, and this profession is what led to me meeting Marty."

Smith's still unnamed forthcoming album, her 54th, is expected to be released this fall on Fat Possum Records.

Hargus "Pig" Robins, who played piano for "Once a Day," is playing piano on the new album.

"Pig has been in a lot of my songs and Marty's songs over the years," Smith said. "He is simply amazing at what he does."

"Once a Day" was produced by Bob Ferguson, a key shaper of the Nashville sound of the 1960s and '70s, including Dolly Parton's "I Will Always Love You."

Recorded at RCA's famous Studio B in Nashville, Smith was backed by session musicians and members of Anderson's band, The Po' Boys, including one new player, steel guitarist Weldon Myrick, who would go on to become a Nashville legend himself.

Ferguson wanted the steel guitar to be right up front and Myrick delivered, so much so that Smith credits Myrick with "creating the Connie Smith sound."

The now late Ferguson would go on to develop a strong connection with the Mississippi Band of Choctaw Indians and move with his family to Neshoba County as Tribal Historian until his death in 2001.

Songs are selected for the National Recording Registry because they have been deemed treasures worthy of preservation for all time based on their cultural, historical or aesthetic importance in the nation's recorded sound heritage, according to the Library of Congress website at www.loc.gov.

Librarian of Congress Carla Hayden said this year's entries were selected from approximately 900 public nominations to bring the total number of recordings in the registry to 575 "representing a small portion of the national library's vast recorded sound collection of nearly 4 million items."

Mayor

Young said he took the primary challenge very seriously.

"We did it from one corner of the city to the other," Young said.

"People may know me but I didn't take anything for granted. It is the people who speak. We were in every community.

"The work paid off and I think people's confidence in me showed."

Young said he will now turn his attention to the general election on June 8.

"It's never over," Young said. "You have to treat people right every day. You have to be respectful every day. And you have to represent the city every day, and to me, that's campaigning every day."

Renaldo to continue campaigning

Renaldo said he will spend the next couple of months campaigning and trying to get out the vote for the June 8 General Election.

"We did a lot of campaigning," Renaldo said of the primary. "We did door hangers and got out and met the public. I am excited about advancing, and I am looking forward to the General Election.

"I am getting a good response. I have received a slew of phone calls and texts wishing me well. I think a lot of people will cross over and vote for me."

Renaldo said his main message is that things can be better in Philadelphia.

"Together, we can make a difference here in Philadelphia," Renaldo said. "A lot of things need to be improved. People want a better quality of life. They want to be safe from crime. They want better infrastructure."

"If elected, I will work with the board of aldermen and bring new ideas to the table," Renaldo said.

"I plan on having an open-door policy where citizens can come in and talk to me about their hopes, their concerns and a better way of life for our citizens."

Registration, absentee deadlines

The last day to register for the June 8 general election is May 10.

The deadline for in-person absentee voting is noon June 5 and absentee ballots returned by mail must be postmarked on or before Election Day and received by the municipal clerk's office within five business days.

City fines business for unclean property

By STEVE SWOGETINSKY
steve@neshobademocrat.com

A local tire store owner is scrambling to get his property cleaned up or continue to face a $500 per day from the city of Philadelphia.

The Mayor and Board of Alderman voted 5-0 during their meeting last week to fine Bobby Hardy, owner of Hardy Tires at 297 W Beacon St, starting Monday until he removes old tires, equipment, rubbish and other junk from the premises.

On Monday, Mayor James A. Young reported that progress was being made.

"He has made some major improvements," Young said. "He is moving some stuff. If this continues, I would say he will be in compliance by Tuesday or Wednesday."

The city says Hardy is in violation of city and DEQ standards. City leaders have been talking with Hardy for several months in an effort to get him to clean the area behind his shop and surrounding lots where more is kept.

Hardy has come before the board several times to discuss the matter and city officials have visited him at his business.

Letters on the matter have been delivered. At the start of the year, Hardy was given 90 days to fix the problem and time ran out Tuesday night.

It was acknowledged then that some efforts have been made to clean up the area but there is much to do.

"We need to do whatever we need to do to make something happen," Ward 2 alderman Jim Fulton said.

"It's not acceptable," said Ward 1 alderman Joe Tullios. "All of the other tire shops in the city comply or are very close to being in compliance with the DEQ. Everybody else has to abide by the rules and he has been given plenty of time."

The board voted to levy a $500 per day fine, Monday through Friday until Hardy gets the property into compliance. They voted for the fine to start as of Monday.

Tullios made the motion and Cassie Henson Hickman seconded it. It passed 5-0.

Hardy was not present at the start of the meeting but came in later. He was not pleased with the decision.

"I just happen to be in the middle of town," Hardy said. "I have been there for over 50 years. I don't understand this. You asked me how long it would take to clean up and I said 90 days, if the weather was good. The weather has not been good."

Runoff election set for April 27 for Ward 4 alderman seat

By STAFF REPORTS

One race for alderman is decided, another is headed to an April 27 runoff and three other races will be decided in the June 8 General Election after Philadelphia voters went to the polls in municipal party primaries on Tuesday, April 6.

In total, 1,207 votes were cast in Tuesday's Democrat and Republican primaries. Of that total, 1,161 were cast on Election Day, 46 were absentee and approximately 10 were affidavits.

Below is a breakdown of the voting in the races for aldermen races:

Ward 3 Alderman

In the race for Ward 3 Alderman, a total of 171 votes were cast in the Democrat primary.

James Tatum earned 94 votes or 54.97% to win the nomination over Darryl Young, who got 76 votes, or 44.44%.

Local legislators vote for teacher pay raise

By STAFF AND WIRE REPORTS

Mississippi legislators agreed on a teacher pay raise plan and it was signed by Gov. Tate Reeves last month.

House Bill 852 gives most teachers and teachers' assistants a $1,000 pay raise. Newer teachers would get $1,100.

Sen. Jenifer Branning, Rep. C. Scott Bounds, both Republicans, voted for the bill as did Rep. Michael Ted Evans, an independent.

The House passed the final version of the bill agreeing to changes made by the Senate.

"Advancing the teacher pay raise bill to the Governor's desk was the right thing to do," Republican Lt. Gov. Delbert Hosemann said.

"Our teachers deserve a salary increase, particularly after their efforts on behalf of kids during the pandemic."

House Speaker Philip Gunn, a Republican, praised the House for passing the bill — and he leveled criticism at the Senate.

"The Senate sent back an amended version of our original bill, which provides less money for certain teachers," Gunn wrote on Twitter.

Mississippi has long had some of the lowest teacher salaries in the nation. According to the Southern Regional Education Board, the average teacher salary in the U.S. for 2018-19 was $62,304. For Mississippi, the average was $45,105.

The current pay raise proposal is similar to one that stalled last year after the coronavirus pandemic created uncertainty about state spending.

Progress on a four-lane

There was much celebration last week as ground was officially broken on the $35.6-million work to four-lane Mississippi 19 into town from Tucker.

“What a wonderful day for Neshoba County,” said state Sen. Jenifer Branning. “Like many of y’all, I was born and raised here.

“Even as a small child I remember conversations about the need for four-lane access to Neshoba County. There are so many people to thank for this day.”

Marty Stuart was on hand. The country music legend sees the progress.

“I think this speaks to the progress of our community,” he said. “It is getting harder and harder to contain all the good things that are happening here. Having four-lane access to bring people in and out of our town is going to help us bring in more restaurants, more businesses and more progress.”

With Stuart’s Congress of Country Music underway downtown, getting more people to town faster is good.

When completed and fully funded, the Congress of Country Music is expected to be a well of inspiration as a music venue surrounded by memorabilia from the likes of Dolly Parton and Johnny Cash.

“This is one of the biggest days in the history of Neshoba County,” said Rep. Michael Ted Evans of Preston who represents part of Neshoba County.

“The folks of Philadelphia and Neshoba County have been waiting for at least 40 years for this.”

He went on to say that the project has been “promised” and is “finally being done.”

Rep. C Scott Bounds echoed the sense of relief.

“This has been a long time coming,” he said. “These local transportation projects have been on the drawing board for a long time. Now the day has come that we are getting to see the fruits of our labor. Not just people here today but the people who have worked on this project over the years.”

The Mississippi Department of Transportation awarded the contract to Philadelphia-based W.G. Yates & Sons Construction last November with an April 1 start date and an Oct. 2, 2023, completion date.

A final stretch of four-lane from Tucker to House remains unfunded as does the $130 million bypass from Highway 19 to Williamsville that has been on the drawing board for three decades — and a thought for a few more decades.

Philadelphia remains one of the few cities of its size and stature without four-lane access.

The bypass is key to any future expansion at Philadelphia’s Weyerhaeuser mill, company officials have said for years following a $57.3 million modernization.

We must keep telling our story and making a strong case for the jobs that could come with better transportation.

While the groundbreaking was one of the biggest days in the life of Neshoba County, much work remains to be done with regard to four-lanes.

What a wonderful day, but sometimes it seems like it’s going to be another 40 years before we see a four-line that connects to an interstate highway, but we’re not giving up.

Putin, Xi have red lines, too

Russian military buildup suggests that it is more of a message to the U.S., NATO than an invasion.

What are Vladimir Putin and Xi Jinping up to?

In recent days, Russian tanks, artillery, armor, trucks and troops have been moving by road and rail ever closer to Ukraine, and Moscow is said to be repositioning its 56th Guards Air Assault Brigade in Crimea.

Military sources in Kyiv estimate there are now 85,000 Russian troops between six and 25 miles from Ukraine’s northern and eastern borders.

“I have real concerns about Russia’s actions on the borders of Ukraine. There are more Russian forces massed on those borders than at any time since 2014 when Russia first invaded,” said Secretary of State Antony Blinken on Sunday’s “Meet the Press.” Blinken added this warning:

“President Biden’s been very clear about this. If Russia acts recklessly, or aggressively, there will be costs, there will be consequences.”

What “costs” and what “consequences” were left unstated.

Earlier, Biden personally assured President Volodymyr Zelensky of America’s “unwavering support for Ukraine’s sovereignty and territorial integrity in the face of Russia’s ongoing aggression in the Donbass and Crimea.”

What does that mean? When Putin was a young KGB officer, the Black Sea was a virtual Soviet lake, dominated in the west by Warsaw Pact members Bulgaria and Romania, and on the north and east by the USSR. Turkey occupied the south bank.

Today, three of the six countries that front on the Black Sea — Bulgaria, Romania and Turkey — are NATO members. Two of the others, Ukraine and Georgia, openly aspire to become members of NATO.

If Russia feels a sense of loss and forced isolation, who can blame them?

The transparency of the Russian military buildup suggests that it is more of a message to the U.S. and NATO than any preparation for an invasion.

RICH LOWRY

Florida governor is the man

If Florida Gov. Ron DeSantis ever sets up a presidential exploratory committee, it should have to disclose an enormous in-kind contribution from CBS News.

The “60 Minutes” segment two weekends ago alleging that DeSantis distributed the COVID-19 vaccine through pharmacies at the Publix grocery store chain as part of a quid pro quo was so outlandishly wrong that even Democratic officials in the state have objected.

It’s not clear that the “60 Minutes” piece can even be called “journalistic malpractice,” since it barely qualifies as journalism.

The downside for DeSantis is that he’s been smeared by the most iconic news magazine show on American television; the upside is that this latest, swiftly debunked media attack contributes to his ongoing ascent in the Republican political firmament.

It’s much too early to know with any certainty what the post-Trump GOP will look like, or even if there will be a genuinely post-Trump GOP for years. But if a post-Trump GOP looks like Ron DeSantis, who has a populist edge and is combative with the press, yet is unquestionably serious about governing and is succeeding in the third-most populous state in the nation, it will have landed in a favorable place.

DeSantis has navigated the Trump years with a deft political touch. He obviously went out of his way to identify himself with Trump at the outset Putin seems to be saying: Ukraine’s admission to NATO or a stationing of U.S. or NATO forces in that country would cross a red line for Russia. And we will not rule out military action to prevent or counter it.

The record suggests that Putin is not bluffing.

We have been here twice before.

In 2008, when Georgia invaded South Ossetia, a province that had broken free of Georgia in the 1990s, Putin sent troops into South Ossetia, drove the Georgians out, and then invaded Georgia and occupied part of that country as an object lesson.

And though the U.S. had regarded Georgian President Mikheil Saakashvili as a friend and Georgia as a potential NATO ally, George W. Bush did nothing.

Again, in 2014, when a U.S.-backed coup overthrew the elected and pro-Russian regime in Kyiv, Putin occupied and annexed Crimea and assisted pro-Russian rebels in the Donbass in breaking free of Kyiv’s control.

In short, when it comes to Ukraine, Russia has demonstrated that it has its own red lines, which it will back up with military action.

The U.S. and NATO, however, have shown repeatedly that while they will give moral support and provide military aid to Ukraine, they are not going to fight Russia over Ukraine, or to wrest Crimea or the Donbass from Putin’s control.

A similar test is taking place in the South and East China seas.

Also on Sunday’s “Meet the Press,” Blinken was asked if the United States would fight to defend Taiwan, which is being harassed and threatened by Xi Jinping’s China, which claims the island as its sovereign national territory.

“Are we prepared to defend Taiwan militarily?” NBC’s Chuck Todd asked.

Blinken’s response: “What we’ve seen, and what is of real concern to us, is increasingly aggressive actions by the government in Beijing directed at Taiwan, raising tensions in the Straits. And we have a commitment to Taiwan under the Taiwan Relations Act ... All I can tell you is it would be a serious mistake for anyone to try to change the existing status quo by force.”

Since Biden’s presidency began, China has been sending military aircraft, fighters and bombers, into Taiwanese air space, circumnavigating the island with warships, and openly warning that any declaration of independence by Taipei would mean war with Beijing.

Thus, Russia has made clear what it would fight to prevent — Ukraine’s accession to NATO and NATO troops on its soil. And China has made clear what its red line is, what it would fight to prevent — the declared independence of Taiwan.

But U.S. policy in both cases seems to be one of “strategic ambiguity,” leaving the issue open as to what we would do.

A question arises: Are Putin’s Russia and Xi’s China, with their advantages of geographic proximity, threatening military action to jointly test the resolve of the Biden administration, and colluding to do so — one in Ukraine, the other in the South and East China Seas?

And, should we fight for Ukraine, how many NATO allies would be there beside us? And should we fight to keep Taiwan free, how many Asian allies would fight China alongside us?

Recent actions by Putin and Xi make the questions no longer academic.

Patrick J. Buchanan is the author of “Nixon’s White House Wars: The Battles That Made and Broke a President and Divided America Forever.”

an entirely reasonable strategy.

DeSantis has rightly been fierce in defending his record, but never gives the sense, as Trump often did, that fighting with the media is a good thing in its own right, over and above any substantive considerations.

If the rise of DeSantis is a Trump-era phenomenon, his record is rooted in traditional conservative priorities — textualist judges, school choice, tax cuts, spending restraint and law and order. He also has a more pragmatic side, increasing teacher pay even as he has pushed for educational reforms and pursuing a robust environmental agenda.

It is always a fool’s errand forecasting a presidential race three years before it begins in earnest. Trump may decide to run again in 2024 and blot out the sun, and DeSantis still has to win reelection in 2022.

On paper, though, he has obvious strength as a potential national candidate. He’s from a hugely important swing state. He’s been battle-tested — he won a brawl of a race in 2018, trailing in the polls throughout. He would perhaps be the only major candidate in 2024 holding an executive office while his governing record would, in theory, allow him to appeal to the key category of “somewhat conservative” voters in GOP primaries, not just to the hardcore.

Volunteers camp in RVs, renovate local church

By STEVE SWOGETINSKY
steve@neshobademocrat.com

When people retire, they don't usually plan to spend several months away from home each year doing construction work on, say, a church in a rural Neshoba County.

But for members of the Church Mobilization ministry of the Assemblies of God, it's something they enjoy as they see new sights and meet new friends.

"A lot of people see what we do as a great sacrifice," said Ed Kleppinger, a resident of Missouri. "But honestly, it's not a sacrifice at all. It's a blessing. We have developed relationships and made new friends in the four years I have been involved in this ministry."

Ed and his wife Glenda are in Neshoba County along with three other couples as part of the Church Mobilization ministry. They are helping the Great Commission Assembly of God church with its renovation of the former Friendship Assembly of God church building located on Mississippi 19 South.

Great Commission Assembly of God came into being when the congregations of Friendship and First Assembly of God churches merged on Dec. 1.

At the time of the merger, the members of the churches became members of Great Commission. There are currently 40 members.

"Right now, we are meeting in the First Assembly building," said pastor Austin Bishop.

"When we finish, we will move into this building. It's bigger, and we needed more room. We will keep the First Assembly of God building located at 10141 Herman Alford Memorial Parkway near Northside Park as an outreach center."

Bishop was previously pastor of the First Assembly Church. He became pastor of Great Commission at the merger.

Joining the Kleppingers are Tommy and Diane Hobson of Louisiana, Lonny and Sandra Franklin Hines of Arkansas, and Melvin and Sherry Watson of Terry. Sherry is there when she can be but is involved in taking care of family members at home.

Currently, the parking lot of the former Friendship Assembly of God church resembles an RV campground.

The couples have parked their motor homes there and that's where they stay during the week. While some go home during the weekend, Lonny and Sandra usually stay and attend church services at Great Commission on Sundays.

Rev. Bishop and Melvin Watson are longtime friends. They have traveled on the foreign mission field in the past, including a trip to Africa.

Bishop knew about the Church Mobilization ministry. It is a ministry of the Assembly of God. When Great Commission church decided to renovate the old Friendship building, they applied to the ministry for help.

"There was nothing wrong with the building but some things needed to be updated and repaired," Bishop said. "We were blessed to have the financial means to do this first phase."

"We are renovating the brick building which includes the sanctuary, two new bathrooms, the greeting area, the foyer, the walkway entranceway and the signage. Some repairs are being made to the metal building (which provides space for a gym, as well as a kitchen and classrooms). When done, there will be a new sound system and audiovisual display."

There is no charge for the labor provided by the volunteers. The volunteers cover their travel and living costs.

"The mission is to go out and help people physically build churches," said Rev. Watson who is a missionary with the Assemblies of God and oversees the project.

"We remodel and build church facilities and church properties, Right now, we have more than 100 projects going on across the country. There are a lot of new or metal building projects. After the building goes up, we go in and build out the inside."

"All of the volunteers are RVers and they are all retired," Watson said. "They travel at their own expense to go where they have to go. We own our RVs."

Workweeks are usually 4 1/2 days. Monday through Thursday are six-hour days and it's a half-day on Friday. Everyone understands their role, Watson said.

"From the start, the church understands we are not their general lock and key contractor. The agreement is for their people to come alongside us and help us get finished as soon as we can," Watson said.

"This ministry is seasonal. A lot of our volunteers are snowbirds. They live up north and like to come south to get away from the cold weather. So, it is usually under a two-year agreement for a new church building."

Watson has been in the ministry as a missionary for 30 years. For the past 11 years, he has been a part of the Church Mobilization ministry during which he has worked on 35 projects. Not only does he work but it's his job to oversee the work the other volunteers are doing.

"My trade since I was 18 years old has been drywall and painting," Watson said. "I oversee three to four different people on a project, but I have work to do, too. I do all of the drywall finishing and paintwork. I am also the runner to go and get materials for them."

The volunteers commit for a specific time. Most have homes and families and the most you get is six months, Watson said.

"When we get as much as we can possibly get done and are no longer needed, we will all pull out," Watson said.

Watson said he hopes to have his crew's work done by June. When they leave, the church will be ready to install the furniture and begin moving in. Bishop said the congregation hopes to be in the new building by the start of the new school year.

Getting the Message/Rev. Chris Shelton
Luke 24:50-53

In this passage the Lord Jesus blesses his disciples before ascending into heaven. He had appeared to his disciples after being raised from the dead. When He first appeared to them, He said to them, "Peace to you!" (verse 36)

In your life you might have wonderful pronouncements from someone. You might hear compliments that are encouraging, or the affectionate "I love you," from someone whom you love. I recently heard a lady, who was 20 years old when WWII ended, tell me it was a feeling she will never forget when she heard the war was over.

But there is no pronouncement like the Son of God saying, "Peace to you." At that point the disciples didn't understand it. Jesus knows they are troubled and full of doubts (verse 38). So he shows them his hands and feet. He is not a just a spirit. His body has been raised. And it means peace for them.

Jesus is not ashamed of his wounds inflicted upon Him from the cross. He has conquered death, and accomplished the peace God promised in Moses and the prophets, which the angels also announced at his birth (Luke 2). He is alive forevermore, and all who believe in him will be also. He has paid in full the debt of sin.

The disciples loved Jesus, but they could not understand his dying, especially upon the cross, the sign of one accursed of God. So Jesus explains the Scriptures and opens their minds to understand why he had to suffer (verses 44-45). It had to have been a humbling, yet joyful thing to hear the Lord explaining he had to die for their sin, and he loved them this way so they could be with God forever.

Moreover, Jesus tells them they are witnesses of all that has happened, and of the Scriptures, so they are commissioned to "proclaim repentance and forgiveness of sins in his name to all the nations, beginning in Jerusalem (verses 47-48)." There is indemnity to be proclaimed from heaven to sinners; they will have no legal liability to God through Christ Jesus.

Jesus tells the disciples that he will send the promise of the Father, which means the Holy Spirit. The Holy Spirit will empower the disciples and convict men of the truth. Men are slaves to sin until Christ makes them free. Where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty. That which is born of flesh is flesh, and that which is born of the Spirit is spirit. Without the Spirit we can do nothing.

Therefore, we owe all to God for our salvation. He has given us Christ for our sin and corruption; the Spirit to make us wise for salvation. Christ is risen indeed, so when he blesses the disciples (verse 50), they are blessed indeed.

In Numbers 6, the priestly benediction was, "The Lord bless you and keep you. The Lord make his face to shine upon you and be gracious to you. The Lord lift up his countenance and give you peace." After this the Lord says that his name shall be upon the people and that he will bless them. In Revelation 22, we read that in the new heaven and new earth, Christians shall see the face of the Lord, and his name will be on their foreheads."

How do we apply this? It is vital, as the apostle Peter writes in his 2nd epistle, is to "make your calling and election sure." You have to act on God's word; practice genuine repentance and produce fruit in keeping with faith. Peter tells us growth comes by looking to what is promised in heaven, and by remembering you have been cleansed from sin.

In the parable of the great banquet, Jesus warns that many will refuse the invitation to come and eat with the Master because of preoccupation with other things. So he sends servants to invite the afflicted, lame, crippled, and blind men. Those who come to Christ, and look ahead to seeing him, live as those cured of an affliction by Christ. Make sure of your place at the table.

The apostles worshipped Christ, and had great joy (verse 53). In those he blesses, the Lord Jesus expects adoration. Your life as a Christian may be filled with trouble (and the apostles would face many troubles), but the peace Christ proclaimed endures. So we need to endure in the faith, endeavoring to love Christ and honor his name as the first thing we practice in our life.

This Devotional and Directory is made possible by these businesses who encourage all of us to, attend worship services. If your church is not listed this week, please look in next week's edition.

Aldermen approve $737K paving plan for city

By STEVE SWOGETINSKY
steve@neshobademocrat.com

A $737,771 paving plan was approved by the Philadelphia Mayor and Board of Aldermen last week.

Streets Superintendent Rex Savell provided aldermen with a list of streets to be repaved which they approved.

The repaving project will be paid for as part of the $1.2 million bond issue the city approved last year, and from $140,000 received over the past year and a half from the Internet Sales Tax rebate.

Here are the streets slated for the repaving program listed by wards:

Ward 1

- North Evergreen Avenue/Indian Hospital Street to the pavement change.
- Indian Hospital Street/Columbus Avenue to Evergreen Avenue.

Ward 2

- Carla Drive/Knight Street to the cul-de-sac.
- Tommy Drive/Golf Course to Macy Street.
- Line Street/Range Avenue to Holland Avenue.

Ward 3

- Jerico Street/Lewis Avenue to Pearl Avenue.
- Gum Street/Barrier Avenue to county maintenance.
- Weyerhaeuser Street/Lewis Avenue to bridge.
- Range Avenue/Weyerhaeuser Street to Hospital Road.

Ward 4

- Martin Luther King Drive/Border Street to Ivy Street.
- Ivy Street/Windstar to Sportsman Club.
- Carver Avenue/MLK to Community Building.
- Rea Street/North Railroad to Carver Avenue.

"The list was determined by priorities," Mayor James Young said. "Those streets needed it the most. And we didn't get all of the streets that needed to be repaved. Those were the most traveled and that's how Rex determined which were to be repaved at this time. We can't do them all in one year but this will be a major improvement."

In other matters, aldermen voted to:

- Approve the minutes of the prior meeting and the claims docket.
- Approve the hiring of Allen and Hoshall of Jackson to work on two CDBC applications. If approved, the money would go toward making city buildings more handicap accessible.
- Approve to pay poll workers $125 per day. Aldermen also voted to pay workers on the resolution board $50 per day.
- Approve a road bore for C Spire along Range Avenue to Line Street to St. Francis to Holland Avenue.
- Approve paying Waggoner Engineering $1,247.
- Table an application of employment for the Streets Department for two weeks.

- Approve a rezoning request from the property owners at 525 Ivy St. to change the lot from R1 to R4. The owner plans to open a daycare. There were no objections at the public hearing where the matter was discussed.
- Approve for the city building official to attend the summer conference June 13-18, at Biloxi. The city will cover registration and travel expenses.
- Approve to pay DLC Tree and Land Service to remove a large tree that has died next to the graveyard at a cost of $2,500. Mayor Young was afraid the tree would fall and damage the tombstones.
- Approve to pay DLC Tree and Land Service $6,300 to remove nine trees from DeWeese Park to make way for a walkway to the Fallen Veterans Memorial.

- Approve the payment of two claims from the St. Francis Drive bridge project, One was for $67,312 to McGee Construction Co., and the other was for $31,810 to Crowder Engineering. The money comes from the DFA Bridge Project account.
- Approve the hiring of two police officers, Adam Joe as a sergeant at $16.09, and Caleb Willis as patrolman first class at $13.61. Aldermen also approved for training and travel expenses for officer David Turk and Sgt. Josh Ray to attend firearms instruction training classes at Mississippi Delta Community College.

First Lady taps Gray as 'Florist of the Month'

By SCOTT HAWKINS
scott@neshobademocrat.com

Young Philadelphia florist Madden Gray started working in floral arrangements when he was just 15 and this month found himself decorating the Mississippi Governor's Mansion.

Gray, 22, who owns and operates MG & Company, a gifts, home, floral and design store on the square in Philadelphia, put in an application after one of his customers sent him an email in late February with information about Mississippi First Lady Elee Reeves' Florist of the Month program.

On the first Monday of April, Gray was decorating the Mansion with floral arrangements in five rooms.

Gray said he is honored to be chosen for the program that was instituted by the First Lady after she and Gov. Tate Reeves moved into the mansion.

Gray said he was not intimidated by the prospect of providing the flower arrangements for five rooms each week of April.

"It was neat though," Gray said of learning he had been chosen. "I was like, 'Oh my word!' It is just such an honor to do."

Gray started working in floral arrangement approximately seven years ago.

"I am just kind of self-taught really," Gray said. "I go online just looking at videos and that type of thing. Trial and error."

Gray fell into the business through his parents, Wes and Melissa Gray, who had a restaurant called Pete and Kate's in Stallo that had a gift shop in one corner.

"When that closed, I had to Philadelphia's Madden Gray is creating floral arrangements at the Mississippi Governor's Mansion this month.

have something to do with the gifts, so I started opening little booths everywhere," Gray said. "That just kind of got that started and that led up to storefront."

Gray then operated a gift booth in a florist shop in Philadelphia before he opened his own shop MG & Company.

Since then, MG & Company has been featured in Mississippi Magazine having been voted best home decor store in 2018 and 2019 and having been featured in the magazine's M List numerous times. MG opened a second location in Louisville last October.

As for decorating the governor's mansion, Gray said, "It was so fun. I loved it." For preparation, Gray said the Mansion staff sent him specifications for the space for which he is providing floral arrangements.

"They sent me container sizes and all the measurements and pictures of what I was supposed to be doing," Gray said. "I got prepped with all my designs and figured out what kind of flowers I was going to be using, color schemes every week, how we were going to change it out and make it different every week."

Gray said he is especially honored to be the florist of the month for April because this is the first month the Mansion has been opened for tourists since the COVID-19 pandemic began in March 2020.

Gray is responsible for floral arrangements in the foyer, two restrooms, the first lady's office and a sitting room.

"The foyer arrangement is like a large arrangement for where everybody walks in," Gray said. "They all kind of match in some way. I like that."

As the weeks go on, however, Gray said he will mix it up.

"They will be a little bit different," Gray said of the week-to-week arrangements.

"This week we used hydrangeas and after Easter just kind of pastel this week. Then when we get toward the end of April we will do more summery bright. One week we are going to do all white and green magnolias. That is kind of like our signature look. All white and green."

Ann Beard, chief of staff for First Lady Reeves, said the first lady instituted the Florist of the Month program to give a variety of the state's florists a chance to provide arrangements for the mansion while in the past first ladies had only one florist through the term.

"The First Lady thought it would be a good idea to be a florist for the month," Beard said, adding the florists get a budget from which to work for their designated month. "It is a nice perk for them to get a little bit of free publicity. We post to Instagram and Facebook."

The program is open to any florist in the state.

"It has been really well received," Beard said. "We've had florists from Vicksburg, Meridian and throughout the state. Contact me and I'll get you set up."

Beard said she and the first lady are pleased with Gray's early work.

"I think they are beautiful," Beard said of the arrangements. "I enjoyed meeting him. He has done a great job, and I look forward to what he might come up with next."

Gray said he is excited by the opportunity.

"It is an honor to be able to do that at the mansion," Gray said. "For everybody to see your design — the tours started back April 1. For everybody to see those, to be able to make something special every week for them, it is an honor to be able to do that."

munication among organizations and the Mississippi Wireless Information Network (MSWIN) was born.

MSWIN was designed with a simple, straightforward objective: Get the right information to the right people, in the right place, at the right time, according to the MSWIN website.

"With this objective in mind, the MSWIN system is a robust architecture with disaster recovery features that will provide reliable communications under extreme conditions such as hurricanes, ice storms, and floods," their website says.

To date, 68 of Mississippi's 82 counties are members of MSWIN and the MSWIN radio system offers reliable digital communications throughout the state, including in rural areas such as Neshoba County, Clark said.

How do you eat an elephant?

Clark said he had a lot of time to think about his priorities and goals when he was running for office and using the old adage, "How do you eat an elephant? One bite at a time," he created a drawing of an elephant with pieces of the elephant sectioned off for each of his goals.

Among those goals were getting marked patrol units, fleet tracking, uniform policies, increased patrols, increased training opportunities and working closely with other agencies on drug enforcement, all of which have been accomplished in 2020.

For 2021, Clark wanted to adopt a policy manual, obtain body cameras, obtain a live scan fingerprint machine, implement a career ladder with competitive salaries, uniformed collection and storage and becoming National Incident Based Reporting System compliant to work with the FBI, all of which has been accomplished or is in the works.

Clark's elephant graphic is no longer in his office since most of the goals have been accomplished, with the exception of three on the "To do list":

- To obtain Mississippi Department of Corrections accreditation to allow housing of joint county and state inmates;

- Implement a tag reader program;

- Get MSWIN radios.

"My biggest accomplishment will be the MSWIN radios," Clark said.

Making the switch

Making the switch to the MSWIN system, Clark said, would require buying a base unit, 20 car radios and 20 portable radios.

"There is no rent on the repeaters, and no cost on upkeeping the equipment," Clark said, adding the MSWIN system is on the state contract system, which means everyone pays the same price.

To make the switch, Clark said it would cost Neshoba County $100,000.

"The first payment can be deferred a year," Clark said, "and the payments spread over five years."

Clark said he believes the positives of switching to the MSWIN would outweigh the downsides.

Currently, the Neshoba County Sheriff's Office is communicating with other agencies in the county, such as Philadelphia police and fire departments and the county's volunteer fire departments through central dispatch.

Neshoba County's Emergency Management is the only county entity with MSWIN equipment, thanks to Katrina.

Countywide communications

County Administrator Jeff

Mayo agreed that switching to the MSWIN system would have pluses and minuses for the county.

"MSWIN offers some interoperability with state agencies," Mayo said. He also said the county would relinquish some control of the overall communications system by switching.

Mayo said the county's 12 volunteer fire departments would not be able to communicate with the Sheriff's Office if the sheriff's office switched to the MSWIN system unless all 12 volunteer fire departments went to the MSWIN system as well.

"We would have to look at it as a county," Mayo said. "While all agencies have interoperability on VHS they wouldn't on MSWIN."

Clark said communication with the volunteer fire departments could be handled through the central dispatch.

Philadelphia going to MSWIN

Both the Philadelphia fire and police departments are considering changing to the MSWIN system soon.

"It is just a better system," said Pierce Clark, fire chief for Philadelphia. "Everybody is going to it, and we don't want to be left behind."

Pierce Clark said the Philadelphia Fire Department has been using the MSWIN system for a few years in addition to the older radio system.

"In the last six months, we have probably paid $15,000 in maintenance on our system," Pierce Clark said. "The system is old and we are going to do away with that."

Pierce Clark said he hopes to move to the MSWIN system in the next couple of months and that they are currently getting price estimates on the equipment.

Philadelphia Police Chief Eric Lyon said the police department plans to move to the MSWIN system when the fire department does.

Pierce Clark and Lyon said their respective departments both communicate frequently via radio with the Neshoba County Sheriff's Office.

Funding

Eric Clark said he plans to formally ask the Neshoba County Board of Supervisors to fund his request to change the Neshoba County Sheriff's Office to the MSWIN radio system.

"I've got to get it on the table," Eric Clark said.

He is hopeful that funding would be included in the recently passed federal rescue plan funds that will be coming soon.

"First responders do not close down during the pandemic," Eric Clark said. "How could you not include law enforcement in the COVID relief?"

Philadelphia's Hardy nominated for 3 Country Music Awards

By DUNCAN DENT
duncan@neshobademocrat.com

Michael Hardy's No. 1 hit single "One Beer" has turned into three Country Music Award nominations for the Philadelphia-born country music singer and songwriter.

Hardy, as he is known professionally, was nominated for Songwriter of the Year, New Male Artist of the Year and Music Event of the Year in association with his song "One Beer," featuring Lauren Alaina and Kevin Dawson.

Winners will be announced at the 56th Annual Academy of Country Music Awards show, hosted by Keith Urban and Mickey Guyton, at 7 p.m. Sunday, April 18 on CBS.

Hardy, 30, broke new ground in 2020 with his acclaimed debut album, "A Rock," which is described by Billboard as "an album that owes as much to AC/DC as George Jones" and "one of the most self-assured full-length debut albums in years."

In January, Hardy launched his third single, "Give Heaven Some Hell."

The song was penned by Hardy with Ashley Gorley, Ben Johnson and Hunter Phelps. It was produced by Joey Moi and co-produced by Derek Wells. The song is described as a lump-in-your-throat tribute to a fallen friend and was chosen by Billboard for a "Makin' Tracks" feature and is gaining airplay on radio stations throughout the nation.

"I am very proud of the songwriters and radio team for making this happen, and I really hope that taking this song to radio will help reach a wider audience than it already has," Hardy said.

He currently lives in Nashville and is the son of Mike and Sarah Hardy, formerly of Philadelphia and now of Nashville.

Hardy's grandparents are Joyce and Bobby Hardy of Philadelphia.

Park ball returns at Northside

By STEVE SWOGETINSKY
steve@neshobademocrat.com

The lights have come back on at Northside Park and it's time to play ball.

The 2020 park ball seasons were canceled because of the COVID-19 pandemic. But after a year's wait, boys and girls, ages 6-to-13 returned to action.

"It was great," said Parks director Cody Bryan. "Everyone was happy to be back out there. Everyone was in a good mood. We had a good crowd, it was good for the town."

The teams have been practicing for about a month in anticipation of opening night. Bryan said there were 515 boys and girls playing baseball and softball and 170 children playing T-ball.

Northside Park participates in the Dixie Youth-Boys for baseball and USSSA in softball. There are 21 baseball teams and 17 softball teams spread over the different age groups.

"We will be playing Monday, Tuesday and Thursday," Bryan said. "We will be playing on all eight fields Monday and Tuesdays. We only have two fields running on Thursday."

Winstead uses heart, not cookbook in kitchen

By SARAH KATHRYN WATKINS
news@neshobademocrat.com

Amie Winstead is the daughter of Noland and Geraldine Pinter. Growing up, Winstead had four older brothers who had already gotten married and moved from Philadelphia. When Winstead was seven, she got a younger brother. Her mother, Geraldine Pinter, was a stay-at-home mom, and Winstead's father worked in Louisville. Winstead was used to being the family's baby but was happy to have a younger brother.

While attending school at Neshoba Central, Winstead met her now-husband, Taylor Winstead, in fifth grade.

"We had our first class together in fifth grade," said Winstead.

The couple started dating when they were in ninth grade and have been together since. After graduating from Neshoba Central, Winstead and her husband attend school to become nurses. Since they were both in nursing school, they were able to take the same courses.

They got married in 2013 and have been married for eight years. Winstead and her husband work at Neshoba General.

Winstead is a new mother to a 5-month baby boy named Brantley Trace Winstead. She described him as a very active baby. For Easter, Brantley got a swing in his Easter Basket. Since the weather has been nice, they have been able to take their son outside.

Winstead's mother and grandmother, Lola Bozeman, taught her how to cook.

"I remember being a girl, and I would pull up a chair and help my mother roll out biscuits," Winstead said.

One of Winstead's hobbies is cooking and trying new types of things in the kitchen. Winstead mentioned she never goes by a cookbook. Instead, she goes by her heart. Winstead loves seafood, and when she is in the mood for something sweet, she can bake a cake for herself from scratch. Winstead also enjoys painting and doing crafts.

In Winstead's downtime, she likes to hang out with her friends and family. And on Sundays the family attends church at New Bethel Baptist Church.

"On the weekends, that's when we usually take the baby on rounds to his cousins and grandparents," Winstead said.

The Winstead family is also looking forward to summertime to see their son get into a pool for the first time.

MAC AND CHEESE
2 cups noodles boiled according to package

Taylor, Brantley Trace and Amie Winstead

16 oz heavy cream
8oz velveeta cut into blocks
1 pack provolone cheese cut into pieces
2 cups sharp cheddar
1 cup Colby jack
Salt and pepper to taste
2 sleeves of ritz crackers, crushed
*Made with a secret ingredient that I can't reveal

Boil noodles. While noodles are boiling cut and mix everything else together except butter and crackers. Drain noodles and add to everything else. Mix well until melted, be sure to stir the bottom so it does not stick and scorch. Pour into baking dish.

COOK OF THE WEEK

Crush ritz crackers. Melt butter into nonstick skillet on medium heat and mix in ritz crackers until golden and crispy. Spread evenly onto macaroni mixture and bake for approximately 20 mins on 350 until bubbly.

STICKY CINNABUNS
2 cans 8 count cinnamon rolls (sit the icing aside)
1 cup brown sugar
1 stick of butter
1/4 cup of honey

Walnuts- amount to your liking, I use the 816 oz

Combine butter, brown sugar, and honey into nonstick saucepan/boiler on stove. Stir together and bring to a bubbly boil. Boil for 1 minute while lightly stirring!

Hack: spray a little cooking oil into your measuring cup and the honey will slide right out.

Pour sticky mixture into a lightly greased 9x9 pan! Pour in walnuts evenly. Place cinnamon rolls into pan. Bake according to cinnamon roll directions. You may need to add a couple of minutes to the cooking time to ensure the center ones get done. Once done, let semi-cool and turn upside down onto a platter and enjoy!

BROCCOLI SALAD
3-4 heads of fresh broccoli
1 1/2-2 cups mayonnaise (can substitute Greek yogurt)
1/2-1 cup of sugar
3-4 tablespoons vinegar (white or apple cider either one will work)
1/2 to 1 raw red onion (depending on how much you prefer) finely diced
1/2-1 cup raisins
Large pack of "real" bacon pieces

8oz of cheddar or Colby Jack cheese
Salt and pepper to taste

Wash and cut florets only off into small pieces. Dispose of stems. Place in bowl and combine with all other ingredients.

This is one of those recipes to where each ingredient can be tweaked to your taste and liking! It's best served once it's had time to marinate in the fridge and has gotten cold. Stir again before serving after refrigeration.

Just Among Friends

The Neshoba Central 2021 Senior Prom was held at The Venue on the evening of March 27. The theme was "Diamonds and Glamour" which was a true reflection of how this group of seniors felt for finally having a Prom. They were so excited to have the experience of getting to dress up and celebrate as normal after a year of uncertainty.

The decorations were as bright as the smiles of the guests who attended the event. A path of shimmering lights and dangling crystals made a path for the guests as they entered the center stage featuring the DJ JIGGA JT. His playlist kept the dance floor full all night and his interaction with the crowd kept everyone pumped up.

There was a photo booth with fun props so that anyone who desired could have their memories captured by Philadelphia's own Gamble Miller Martin.

Near the end of the evening, the Prom Queen and King were announced and crowned by the Senior Sponsor and Prom Coordinator, Candi Hall, and the Student Body President, Sofia Euyoque. The Prom Queen was Sanaa Merrell and Prom King was Keaton Pearson. The King and Queen danced together to the class song as their classmates cheered them on. The last event of the evening was the Senior Slideshow created by Mrs. Ray Carol Eakes from the photos submitted by the Seniors.

As this memorable evening concluded, Seniors were given a parting gift and the Senior Sponsor told each one to be careful and safe. This Prom Night was truly a night of "Diamonds and Glamour" to remember.

Palm Sunday is always a very important day during the celebration of Easter in the Christian churches. Palm Sunday on March 28 this year was extra special for the Drew Breland family whose 8-month-old son was baptized in the First United Methodist Church. Tiny Andrew Kenneth Breland, III was baptized by the Pastor, Chris Young, who introduced him to the congregation. He looked precious in his white outfit and white shoes. His parents are Drew and Hollie Thomas Breland and his siblings are Maddie

James and Beau Breland. "Trey" seemed to enjoy the Baptismal ceremony and was alert and happy.

Some of the family members present were his maternal grandparents, Drew and Cindy Thomas and his great grandmother, Virginia West. Members of the Breland family were also present for the joyous occasion. Congratulations!

This Easter was a joyous one with families getting together after a year of being apart for many of them. The children enjoyed Easter Egg Hunts at various churches all over town on the Saturday before Easter Sunday which they had missed last Easter. Families held Easter egg hunts for their children and their friends at home and there was excitement in the air as children of all ages enjoyed this tradition.

The weather was beautiful, the azaleas and spring trees bloomed in all their glory. It was truly a glorious Easter weekend. The churches were well attended with people feeling hopeful after a long, stressful year of uncertainty and sorrow. There were so many reasons to rejoice together and look forward to the "promise of springtime after the shadows are through." I hope the promise of springtime comes to each and every one of you with blessings.
